George Bancroft on the Late President.

The historian Bancroft concludes an article in the Atlantic Monthly with the following truthful and generous estimate of Mr. Lincoln:

"In some respects Abraham Lincoln was peculiarly fitted for his task, in connection with the movement of his countrymen. He was one of the Northwest, and this time it was the Mississippi river, the needed outlet for the wealth of the Northwest, that did its part in asserting the necessity of Union. He was one of the mass of the people; he represented them, because he was of them; and the mass of the people, the class that lives and thrives by self-imposed labor, felt that the work which was to be done was a work of their own; the assertion of equality against the pride of oligarchy; of free labor against the lordship over slaves; of the great industrial people against all the expiring aristocracies of which any remnant had faded down from the Middle Ages. He was of a religious turn of mind, without the question and the unbroken faith of the mass was like his own. As he went along through his difficult journey, sounding his way, he held fast by the hand of the people, and he trod the steps with even feet. His pulse's beat twined with their pulses. He committed faults; but the people were resolutely generous, magnanimous and forgiving, and he in his turn was willing to take instructions from their wisdom.

The measure by which Abraham Lincoln takes his place, not in American history only, but in universal history, is his proclamation of January 1, 1863, emancipating all slaves within the insurgent States. It was, indeed, a military necessity, and it did, and it should, have the result of the war. It took from the public enemy one or two millions of bondmen, and placed between one and two hundred thousand brave troops in arms on the side of the Union. A great deal has been said in time of the wonderful results of the toll of the enslaved negro in the creation of wealth by the culture of cotton; and now it is in part to the aid of the negro in freedom that the country owes its success in its movement of regeneration—that the world of mankind owes the continuance of the United States as the example of a republic. The death of President Lincoln sets the seal to that proclamation, which must be maintained. It cannot but be maintained. It is the only rod that can safely carry off the terrible burden. He came to it perhaps reluctantly; he was brought to adopt it, as it were, against his will, but he was compelled by inevitable necessity. He disclaimed all praise for it, saying reverently, after he had succeeded, 'The nation's condition God alone can claim.'

And what a future is opened before the country when its institutions become homogeneous! From all the civilized world the nations will send hosts to share the wealth and glory of this people. It will receive all good ideas from abroad; and its great principles of personal equality and freedom—freedom of conscience and mind, freedom of speech and action—freedom of Government through ever-renewed common consent—will undulate through the world like the rays of light and heat from the sun. With one wing touching the waters of the Atlantic, and the other on the Pacific, it will grow into a greatness of which the past has no parallel; and there can be no spot in Europe or Asia so remote or so secluded as to shut out its influences."

Mr. Seward.

A correspondent at Auburn sends us the following account of an interview between President Lincoln and Mr. Seward at the time when the latter tendered his resignation as Secretary of State, and the majority of the Senators having asked for his removal from the Cabinet. The statement is made by a gentleman who was present at the interview, which took place at Mr. Seward's office, at an early hour in the morning, after the reception of the letter of resignation.

The President entered with the letter in his hand, and said: "Governor, I have called to talk about this resignation of yours." Mr. Seward replied, "If you wish to speak to me about the affairs of the country, Mr. President, I am ready to talk with you; but the resignation is my own personal matter, and I don't wish to talk about that." "That is very well," said the President, and after a few moments' silence, he said: "I should have done so precisely as you have. But that has nothing to do with the main question. I wish to say that I don't regard the views of the forty Senators any more than I should the views of a like number of respectable voters. They were not made Senators for the purpose of dictating to me whom I shall choose for Secretary of State. The country needs your services, Governor, and for the country I demand them." This settled the matter without further parley.

Under the heading of "Reconstruction in North Carolina," the Washington correspondent of the N. Y. Commercial indulges in the following bit of gossip. We give it only as an item among the sensation items and rumors of the day:

Before the close of the present week, the delegation of loyal North Carolinians, now here will have learned President Johnson's views on the proper manner in which to re-construct that State. The great question is the admission of colored people to the right of suffrage. He who undertakes to rob them of that right, says Senator Sumner, "is a usurper and an impostor." Yet there are many who scout at the idea, and they are actively at work here, enlisting such government officials as they can, especially those who were members of the Democratic party. Strange as it may seem, the fortunes of the Democrats are in the ascendant, and it is said that one man bases his claim to recognition in the reorganization, on the fact that he has done much to make the Republican party and emancipation unpopular. This is not improbable.

OVER $300,000 REFUNDED TO THE STATE BY THE GENERAL GOVERNMENT.—The following note from Col. Firm, the Governor's private secretary, conveys information of interest and importance to tax payers:

MADISON, May 25th, 1865.
Editors State Journal.—I have the honor to inform you that the claims of the State against the General Government for money advanced for war purposes mentioned in the Governor's letter to me of the 14th inst., have been adjusted, and a Treasury warrant, in favor of the State, for three hundred thousand and twenty-five cents ($300,250.00), has this day been received from Governor Lewis and deposited in the State Treasury.

Very Respectfully, Your ob't serv't,
FRANK FIRM, Private Sec'y.

Tax Emperor of Mexico owes Louis Napoleon a little bill of $65,000,000.

Howell Cobb and his Staff.

A correspondent of the Herald gives the following pen and ink sketch of Howell Cobb and his staff:

"If there is a human being on God's green earth who deserves commiseration at the hands of his fellow-men, while surrounded with all the luxury that wealth can procure, that man is General Howell Cobb, of Georgia. He is not only a persecuted politician, but a despised traitor—not only to the government, but to the State and people of his residence. His constituency, of which Mr. Cobb and his staff are generally prouder, and the last to do him homage, and the old man in his dotage looks upon the past with regret, upon the future with hope. I had occasion to call upon this great mogul that was, on business, a few days ago, and will endeavor to give a brief pen and ink sketch of 'General Cobb and his staff.' It was a few days after the arrival of the Yanks; and as he still persisted that Macon was not legally captured, by General Wilson's guard was before the door. 'Is General Cobb in?' I inquired. 'He has just gone out,' said the guard. 'I think you are mistaken, sir,' said I, 'for I just saw him alight from his carriage and enter the door.' I walked up the steps and encountered his son, Capt. Cobb, who conducted me to a room occupied by the staff; and while I am waiting an hour for the General, I may as well attempt to describe the 'staff.' It consisted of seven individuals dressed in English blue and gray cloth, with the different insignia of rank, and trimmed in the most fantastic style with lace and gewgaws, covered 'all over with buttons,' like 'Cousin Joe.' One of them—a corpulent individual, with whiskers like a cornucopia—lay stretched upon a sofa, and was twisting his moustache till it assumed the shape of a noose. The other two Chinese regarded me with the same indifference (regardless of my rank), and when he had concluded his narrative drew a deep sigh and, in a nonchalant manner, said that if he could no longer fight the 'Yanks' in this country he could go to Mexico and join Maximilian. This drew forth a heavy guffaw. And then a little dapper gentleman, with a pug-nose and cross eyes, said that, for him, he should now make his long contemplated tour to Europe. 'And I,' spoke up a sandy little fellow, with protruding teeth, between which he held the amber stem of a pipe, 'shall go to the Sandwich Islands or some other place where I shall never see another infernal Yankee. I have only time to remark that these gentlemen by long to the State 'merit,' and never heard the whistle of a Minnie ball. I am called out, and perhaps into the august presence of the late Hon. Howell Cobb, of Georgia. How shall I describe him? A man about five feet eight in his boots; fat, swarthy and dissipated; eyes of no particular shade or color, and a bull-dog air, which said plainly, 'I'm chained now; but wait till I get loose if you want to see fun.' This is all in appearance, however, for he has never been known to show a spark of bravado, or to find a great deal to say about his government, and lauded the necessity which compelled so great and brave a people to submit to the rule of tyrants, as he termed the officers of the United States. When he came to a period I made a dash, and hastily bidding him good morning, left his house, thoroughly disgusted with what I had seen and heard."

Mr. Lincoln's Murder—Sympathy in Russia.

[From the Washington Chronicle, May 18.]

We understand that Mr. De Stoeckl, the Russian minister here, recently read to the President the eloquent instructions of Prince Gortchakov, the minister for foreign affairs at St. Petersburg, of which the subjoined is a translation:

Sir.—The telegraph has brought us the double crime of which the President of the United States has fallen a victim and Mr. Seward barely escaped.

The blow which has struck Mr. Lincoln at the very moment when he seemed to have harvested the fruits of his energy and perseverance, has been deeply felt in Russia. Because of the absence of the emperor, I am not in a position to receive or to transmit to you the expression of the sentiments of his imperial majesty. Being acquainted, nevertheless, with those which our august master entertains towards the United States of America, it is easy for me to repeat in advance the impression which this odious crime will cause his imperial majesty to experience.

I have hastened to testify to Gen. Clay the earnest and cordial sympathy of the imperial cabinet with the federal government.

Please express this in the warmest terms to President Johnson, adding thereto our most sincere wishes that this new and grievous trial may not impede the onward march of the American people toward the re-establishment of the Union, and of that concord which are the sources of its power and its prosperity.

Receive, sir, the assurance of my very distinguished consideration.

His Excellency Mr. Stoeckl.

THE NATIONAL CEMETERY AT GETTYSBURG FINISHED.—The last installment of the iron railing that is to enclose the National Cemetery at Gettysburg has been forwarded to its destination. The whole splendid work is now finished. The National Cemetery adjoins the old cemetery at Gettysburg. Between the two there has been put up this iron railing, seven hundred feet in length. The front contains a grand gateway, the whole being five hundred feet in length. The gateway is a double gate in the center is flanked by a single one on either side. The two principal columns of the large gateway are surmounted by spread eagles of corresponding proportions, perched upon a semi-globe. The pattern is rustic, square with panel work, upon each of which is inscribed the name of a State represented by Union troops in the battle of Gettysburg. Thus the right hand post shows the names Wisconsin, Rhode Island, West Virginia, Illinois, Minnesota, Maryland, Michigan, Indiana and Ohio; and the left bears the names of Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York, Massachusetts, Connecticut, New Hampshire, Vermont and Maine. Nine upon each side, eighteen in all. The term "post" is scarcely applicable to columns of such proportions. The lesser posts are of corresponding shape, surmounted by a draped urn. The center piece of the smaller gates is a national shield; the center piece of the large gate is a star in a wreath of laurel. The railing is plain and massive and appropriate to its purpose.

Mrs. Partington's Last.

reading to his mother the head lines of the Commercial, of Tuesday last, and when he came to 'Jeff Davis to be confined at Fort Lafayette,' the good old lady threw up her hands, exclaiming: 'Laws! I don't think that he was petticoated, but I didn't think that he would happen to him! Well, well, the Confederacy is comin' to pieces!'

The old lady resumed her knitting, and Isaac his reading.

A Tolerably Sensible Rebel.

We have not noticed among the farewell addresses of rebel officers to their men anything more rational or sensible than Gen. Forrest's parting order to his command. If his cavaliers follow his advice they will not be long in becoming quiet and peaceable citizens of the United States. This is the order:

HEADQUARTERS, CAVALRY CORPS, JAMESVILLE, ALA., May 9.

SOLDIERS:—By an agreement made between Lieut. General Taylor, commanding the department of Alabama and Mississippi, and the late Louisiana and Major General Canby, commanding the United States forces, the troops of this department have been rendered. I do not think it proper or necessary at this time to refer to causes which have reduced us to this extremity, nor is it now a matter of material consequence to us how such results were brought about. That we are beaten is a self-evident fact, and any further resistance on our part would be justly regarded as the very height of folly and rashness. The armies of Generals Lee and Johnston having surrendered, you are the last of all the troops of the Confederate States army east of the Mississippi river to lay down your arms. The manner in which you have so long and bravely struggled, and for which you have endured danger, endured privations and sufferings, and have so many sacrifices, is to-day hoped for by the government which we sought to establish and perpetuate is at an end. Reason dictates and humanity demands that no more blood be shed.

Fully realizing and knowing that such is the case, it is your duty and mine to lay down our arms, submit to the powers that be, and aid in restoring peace and establishing law and order throughout the land. The terms upon which you were surrendered are favorable, and should be satisfactory and acceptable to all. They manifest a spirit of magnanimity and liberality on the part of the federal authorities which should be met on our part by faithful compliance with all the stipulations and conditions therein expressed. As your commander, I sincerely hope that every officer and man of my command will cheerfully obey the orders given, and carry out in good faith all the terms of the cartel. Those who neglect the terms and refuse to be paroled may assuredly expect, when arrested, to be sent north and imprisoned. Let those who are absent from their commands, from whatever cause, report at once to this place or to Jackson, Miss., or to some other place, to the nearest United States post or command for parole. A civil war such as you have just passed through, naturally engenders a feeling of animosity, hatred and revenge. It is your duty to vest yourselves of all such feelings and, as far as lies in our power to do so, substitute friendly feelings toward the men with whom we have so long contended and who, widely but honestly differed. Neighborly bonds, personal animosities and private differences should be blotted out, and when you return home, a manly, straightforward course of conduct will secure the respect even of your enemies. Whatever your responsibilities may be to the government, to society, or to individuals, meet them like men. The attempt to establish a separate and independent confederation has failed; but the consciousness of having done your duty faithfully and to the end will in some measure repay you for the hardships you have undergone. In bidding you farewell, I am assured that you carry with you my best wishes for your future welfare and happiness. Without in any way referring to the merits of the cause in which you have been engaged, your courage and determination, as exhibited on many hard fought fields, has elicited the respect and admiration of friends and foes, and I now cheerfully and gratefully acknowledge my indebtedness to the officers and men of my command, whose zeal, fidelity and unflinching bravery have been the great source of my past success. I have never in the field of battle sent you where I was unwilling to go myself, and I would now advise you to go where I feel myself unwilling to pursue. You have been good soldiers. You can be good citizens. Obey the laws, preserve your homes, and the government to which you have surrendered, can afford to be and will be magnanimous.

N. B. FORREST, Lieut. Gen.

Jeff Davis.

PRINCETON, N. J., May 18.—A disloyal paper says a few words for Jeff Davis for the alleged reason that he himself has not now the liberty of speech. Thus, when Bulfinch was unable to speak, his ass spoke for him.

We do not believe that Jeff Davis can bring any evidence that he is guiltless of the Washington murder, but since he turned a woman, there is no knowing what he may bring forth.

We suppose that Jeff Davis may be considered about half man and half woman. It seems to us that the bloomer costume would best suit him.

It takes several weeks for a tadpole to lose his tail and to become a frog. Jeff Davis's transition period when he dropped his breeches and turned woman, was very short.

Jeff Davis would be a most audacious man if he could say to the Federal Government:

That mercy I wish to show them.

That mercy I wish to show them.

That mercy I wish to show them.

That mercy I wish to show them.

That mercy I wish to show them.

That mercy I wish to show them.

That mercy I wish to show them.

That mercy I wish to show them.

That mercy I wish to show them.

That mercy I wish to show them.

That mercy I wish to show them.

That mercy I wish to show them.

That mercy I wish to show them.

That mercy I wish to show them.

That mercy I wish to show them.

That mercy I wish to show them.

That mercy I wish to show them.

Lyman Beecher at College.

Good Father Beecher had dreadful fits of "hypo" when the college bills were to be paid. He could not stand it, he told his wife, the fifth, for he had been married, re-wedded, and again re-wedded since the loss of his third, and best beloved wife; he must take Lyman out of college. The good woman could not hear to this. She had some property in her own right, and that should go to pay her stepson's bills. Lyman knew well that his father was fairly well-to-do in the world, and tried to soothe him. "Don't be concerned," he said; "you have enough to live on at present, and when I get through and have a home, I'll take care of you."

"Poor fellow," grumbled the dispirited old man, "you'll scratch a poor man's head all your lifetime." The dismal prophecy turned out to be not far from true, though the young man managed to help himself that year. Six weeks before commencement the college butler gave him a letter from his father, written in Latin which Cicero would need a glossary to understand. "The butler is licensed to sell in the buttery, cider, methuein, strong beer (not more than twelve cascos a year), loaf sugar, pipes, tobacco, and such like things necessary for students not for sale in the commons." Young Beecher borrowed three hundred dollars, bought out the stock of staples, the retiring butler, and started what we may call a college grocery. The number of cadis which he might sell was strictly limited by college law; but the size of a cadis is not defined. The new butler interpreted it liberally. To replenish the stock left by his predecessor, he sent to New York by an English person (a judge of the article), and bought a hoghead of porter, from which we infer that a cadis, by Yale measurement meant a hoghead. Young Beecher having pronounced his presentation valedictory, went into his grocery enterprise with a will. In six weeks he made enough to pay a borrowed investment, clear commensurate expenses, buy a suit of clothes, with a surplus of a hundred dollars in bad debts for necessaria sahelarius furnished "on tick" to students whose needs in the way of beer and cider, pipes and tobacco, were in advance of their pecuniary resources. "If I had gone into business later," said the good man, "I should have made money."

But this is the first and last instance during his long life in which he showed any aptitude in that direction.

The Crops.

The wheat crop of Canada is represented as unusually promising.

The Belleville Independent says that from all parts of the country it has the most flattering accounts in which the fall grain stood the winter. A much larger breadth of ground was sown to fall grain last year than for several years, and presents a most promising appearance.

The Strathroy Dispatch says that it is pleasing to chronicle the fact that the wheat crop of West Middlesex is spoken of in very cheering terms, and the natural result is that many are almost over sanguine.

The St. Catharines Post says that there was never at this season a better prospect of an abundant harvest. The fall wheat has a rich and healthy appearance, and so has the pasture, although somewhat backward in growth, owing to the coldness of the weather. All kinds of fruit promise abundance.

The Lafayette (Ind.) Courier says: We hear numerous complaints that the farmers are unable to get in their crops on account of the wet weather, and some already sown is rotting in the ground.

The Paoli (Ill.) Eagle says: For the past week or two the continued rains have operated most against our farmers planting corn. It is feared that the wet weather will injure the wheat and oat crops.

The Salem Republican says: The frost on Thursday night, 11th inst., was the most destructive experienced in this latitude since the memorable freeze of six years ago. Peaches, plums, cherries, grapes, strawberries, and all the fruits, large and small, that were far enough advanced, suffered fearfully. Some say the wheat was much injured. The prospect for a fine yield of all kinds of fruit, except apples, was never better. But a temperature from four to six degrees below freezing, was too much for them, and on Friday morning the crop of ice was found to be more abundant than the crop of fruit.

The Western Register says that not only fruit, but wheat suffered to a considerable extent.

A friend who has passed over the Michigan Southern Railroad during the past week, and has taken occasion to note carefully the condition of the crops, informs us that he never saw better wheat at this season of the year. Considerable rain had fallen, but it had all been absorbed by the soil, and he did not hear any complaint of too much rain. All descriptions of farm produce are looking remarkably flourishing.—Tribe's Blade.

A CLEVER TRICK.—There was a ball at a certain hotel in Paris lately. The night was hot and the good company arrived light clad. Suddenly a very pretty femme de chambre, appeared, and asked the maitre d'hôtel to take her to the cloak room. There she left a little bundle, "all that there is of most soft and fragile," as she herself said, "It was the mantle in swansdown of Madame, who was suffering, and a quiet little habit, a paleot, you know, of Monsieur. Would they kindly not crush it, it would be in ruin, and then they knew what those grandes dames were. Don't you Monsieur et Madame." The parcel was taken great care of, and nothing happened till twelve, when the "mantle of Madame" began to cry awfully, and it was found that the young femme de chambre was an adventurer who wished to provide for one of her family, and so packed up her youngest son and left him at the rest of a Paris ball-room. Your moral readers will say, "What a terrible state of things!" and so indeed it is, especially of the baby; but still such things happen in Paris and do not "overcome us."—Paris Letter.

The Cleveland Herald says: "A happy little incident occurred in Boston township, Summit county, last Sunday. A party of four from this city—two gentlemen, a lady and a little girl—were examining one of the well-known tracts in that region. Accompanying the party was a man with a crowbar, who he drove into the rocks and the spring bottom in order that the oil might extrude. Arriving at the spring that claimed their attention, the crowbar was dashed into its bottom, from which large flakes of oil quickly arose to the surface. Little Katie no sooner saw the oil than she hurriedly picked up a boulder, and was about to hurl it thereat, when arrested by her father. 'Why, Katie, what are you going to do?' said he. Looking up with a merry twinkle in her eye, the little creature retorted, 'I'm going to strike oil!'

CITY NOTICES.

SEWING-MACHINES.—Of the many inventions and improvements of sewing-machines, none have so satisfactorily stood the test of time and service as Grover & Baker's. They have taken the highest premiums at the recent State Fairs of fifteen States; they have, moreover, received the warmest encomiums from all persons who have ever used the machines, and those who have had opportunities to compare the different styles of machines, generally prefer Grover & Baker's to any other. They do the work neatly and well, do not get out of order, and are readily adapted to any kind of sewing. We would advise our lady readers, who are in want of a sewing-machine, to call at Grover and Baker's, —Brooklyn Standard.

THE CULTIVATOR OF CORN.—The large amount of corn to be planted this season, renders it necessary for the producer to have some improved implement for its cultivation. To meet this demand, I am now building "The Badger State" gig corn planter.

After six months experimenting with different models, we have one which we are willing should be put to the test, and that it should stand or fall on its own merits. A lengthy description does not seem to be necessary. We will simply say that we are confident it will perform all that any cultivator will, and all that any farmer will require of it. It has six shovels, or four, as desired. The shovels are so arranged as to cultivate wide or narrow, shallow or deep; and they all have a very easy side motion. To say that they are made under the supervision of G. F. Lane, is a sufficient guarantee that they will be well made. In fact, they will be warranted in every respect.

The Badger State gig cultivator will be sold this season at $50 at the shop. Call and see it at the shop one block south of the Hyatt House.

COLLUSION BETWEEN SEVERAL CITIZENS OF JANESVILLE.—1st Cit.—I have just bought a new coat at Overton's Clothing Store, opposite the Hyatt House, and I must say that he now has a fine assortment of Spring and Summer goods on hand, and that he is selling them very cheap indeed.

2d Cit.—"I bought a fashionable hat there—the other day, and I got it twenty-five per cent. below the usual rates."

3d Cit.—"Overton don't brag and boast that he will undersell all creation, and turn Rock River up stream; but he says he will sell at the lowest prices possible and sustain business."

4th Cit.—"But after all, his prices are lower than at any other store I can find; and his goods are of a good quality and fashionable styles. His cloths are SUPER-EXCELLENT."

5th Cit.—"He don't pretend to sell you 'sheep' clothing, and tell you the goods are 'all wool,' when they are nothing but coarse satinet; but he tells you truthfully just what the goods are, and I believe that he means to do business honestly, 'on the square.'"

Citizens (All exclaim together)—"That's so, that's so! and we recommend those wanting to buy CLOTHING, CLOTHS, HATS, CAPS, GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS, TAILOR'S TRIMMINGS, &c., to go to Overton's Store, opposite the Hyatt House, and purchase." no4w3wmy20dktw6w3w694.

MORRELL'S ELECTRIC MAGNETIC FLUID.—It has been a settled scientific fact that disease is the result of the disturbance of the magnetic forces of the system. That being the case, the natural conclusion would necessarily be, that that which will restore a perfect circulation must be a specific. This the electric magnetic fluid effects, on applying it simply to the surface. Its powers are truly marvelous. It is indicated in all cases when there is a lack of magnetic circulation, such as rheumatism, neuralgia, palsy, bronchitis, consumption, stiff limbs, swollen joints, spasms, cramp, fits, deafness, sore eyes, catarrhs, syphilis, cancers, white swelling, prostatic and other female diseases, &c. Morrell's Magnetic Fluid is highly recommended for the cure of cuts, bruises, old sores and burns. If applied to a burn immediately, it will stop it from blistering, and take out the fire at once.

OFFICE IN MYERS' BLOCK, Main St., Janesville, next door to Dr. Hale's Drug Store.

Caries of the Human Teeth. Caries of the teeth passes through three distinct stages.

FIRST STAGE. Now the decay has exposed the pulp or nerve, the patient is afflicted with toothache, jumping, throbbing ache, &c. No language can give an adequate idea of the pain experienced. Robert Barry says it is like being stung by a thousand bees. The pain is throbbing, shooting, darting from tooth to tooth, and from head to foot, giving rise to neuralgia, headache, chill and fever, and all the disagreeable consequences, are apt to attend decay of the teeth. The patient expresses the wish, perhaps a thousand times, that he had put teeth in his head, and oh, the agonies and horrors of having them extracted!

SECOND STAGE. Now the decay has reached the end of the long roots, the perforation underneath around the neck of the tooth, is indicated by a dark, brown colored spot, when at length the enamel breaks through, which gives the first warning of decay. Still the tooth does not ache, until the decay reaches the nerve pulp, first indicated by aches, afterwards by aching and throbbing pains.

THIRD STAGE. Now the inflammation has reached the end of the long roots, the perforation underneath

Patent Medicines.

DR. SEELY'S
LIQUID
AND DYSPEPSIA.
This medicine increases the power of digestion, and excites the absorbents into healthy action, by which the water or calcareous deposits, and all morbid enlargements, are reduced, as well as pain and inflammation.
Take no Bilem, Mercury or Inflammatory medicine for unpleasant and dangerous diseases.

Patent Medicines.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU
cures scurf in all its stages, at little expense; little or no change of diet; no inconvenience, and no cure. It causes frequent desire and gives strength to urine, thereby removing obstructions, preventing and curing catarrhs of the urethra, and allaying inflammation, so frequent in this class of disease.
Thousands upon thousands who have been the victims of Quacks, and who have paid heavy fees to be cured in a short time, have found they were deceived, and that the "poison" has, by the use of "powerful stimulants," been driven up the system, to break out in an aggravated form.

Patent Medicines.

THE GREAT DIURETIC,
and it is certain to have the desired effect in all diseases for which it is recommended.
